Good Afternoon Tom,

Just to make sure we're all on the same page, Larry and I did have a conversation about the concerns of conducting audits under USPAP standard 3. I explained that in some cases when I had selected appraisal reviews as a work sample, the candidates were then asked to prepare an Appraisal Review under USPAP standards 1 and 2. In the interest of completing the application procedures as expeditiously as possible, I had requested this work sample ahead of time rather than wait for a committee member to ask for it.

It seemed like a topic that would potentially be discussed at the next REA board meeting (11/1/16). If further information/perspective from me is needed at this meeting, I'm more than happy to attend.

Please let us know if there are any additional questions or concerns.

Thank you,

Eleanor Shea

Hi Eleanor,

This is Larry Nicholson and I am chairman of the Real Estate Appraiser's Board. I sent the following email to Tom Ryan and found out that he is on vacation all this week. Therefore, I am forwarding it to you. I would like to speak with you about this general issue after you have read through my comments. I do not want to and should not speak about the precise appraiser application. If we need to wait until Tom's return then let me know.

Please confirm receipt of this email by replying. Thank you.

Subject: Certified General Appraiser Requirements for Bank Review Appraisers

Hi Tom,

It has been brought to my attention that we may have inconsistencies with review appraisers for banks not being able to become licensed certified appraisers without preparing and submitting three complete USPAP Standard 1 and 2 compliant reports. Typically over the last 5-10 years, the review appraiser applicant has three review appraisal reports selected for review by the App committee from his/her roster for review. The three selected reports need to be compliant with USPAP Standard 3 and if so, experience is granted. Never to my knowledge has a review appraiser applicant been requested by Credentialing to prepare three sample appraisal reports for review by the App committee. I have seen numerous cases in my term on the App committee and on the REAB where review appraiser applicants have three "review reports" selected and reviewed for USPAP compliance – this is the inconsistency that I mentioned. If the review reports are not USPAP compliant, then that is a different issue.

I do not know the applicant who emailed me concerning this issue nor have I communicated with him, but as chairman of the REAB feel it necessary to look into this possible inconsistency. Let me know if I should speak with someone from credentialing on this general review appraiser matter.

Cordially,

Larry Nicholson, MAI

Subject: Appraising in WI

Hi Tom,

I'm hoping you can point me in the right direction as to who I should be voicing this to.

Recently I looked into becoming an appraiser in our state. The experience requirement of 2,000 hours for the lowest licensure kind of surprised me, but I understand that you want licensed appraisers to have experience in their field & therefore protecting the public. The issue I have is when I checked with our three appraisal companies here in Marshfield (where I live) as to what they do with potential trainees. I was told by all three that they are too busy to take on trainees & that basically there is no benefit for them to do so.

After a little more research- sure enough I found out that at least 2/3 if not all had fathers who were appraisers & it was basically passed down to them.

My issue is pretty obvious- how is someone supposed to get into this field if they cannot find someone who is willing to help them with the experience requirement to get licensed in this state? My only option would be to pickup my entire family & move just so I can train & get the experience hours? Obviously when you have small kids you cannot afford to move them to work for nothing. This is obviously very disappointing- unless there is something I am missing, which is why I am emailing you. I appreciate your time & any insight you can provide me.

Thank You,

Cory Helwig
